

After the Test

Finding out the result

- Once you have completed your test, your result will be shown on the screen, however, whether you are eligible for a certificate will depend on which ICDL certification programme you have signed up for with your ICDL Accredited Test Centre.
  - ICDL Arabia reserves the right to invalidate a passed result if it is found through a review of the recording that a violation of the test session rules was observed. ICDL Arabia will make every attempt whilst the test session is in progress to inform you via messages in the platform, if you are suspected of a violation. However, there may be occasions where your test session will require a further review and in these cases you will be informed within 72 hours from taking your test if your test is invalidated.
  - The day following your test, you can go to your candidate portal / my results to check the modules you completed and see the final results.

What if you fail?

- You can register to retake any test via the ICDL remote testing platform for the same module by contacting your test centre who will book you into another test session.
- You cannot retake a failed test on the same day, you will have to wait for 24 hours before being able to book into another test session.
